

Using Your Golden Vortex III

by Nick Nelson

We call this new, improved edition of the Golden Vortex device the GVIII. The GVIII is the third generation of our Golden Vortexes devices, a completely unique approach to magnetic health appliances. Other health devices using magnets tout only magnetic attraction, but the GVIII alters magnetic spin fields to directly harmonize with a body's sympathetic nervous system.

One of the problems for many regarding the GV2 was the high price, because of the diamond-shape, high grade, black graphite enhanced plastic, which gave the factory fits. The device is beautiful, but horribly expensive to manufacture. The GVIII magnetic configuration is now inside a casing produced by a regular injection mold; not as pretty, but it does the same thing as the GV2, which is no longer available.

The Original Golden Vortex (OGV) is static, only works on one side, seeming to aid several ailments, focusing mostly on pain. The GV2 Elite was dynamic in nature. The OGV (still available) makes the wearer appear smaller than normal, whereas the GV2, (and now GVIII) causes the wearer to appear to change height from short to tall over a period of several seconds.

Clean the GVIII with soap and warm water avoiding harsh chemicals. The magnets are tiny and we haven't found any negative effects with the device harming credit cards or electronic equipment. The magnets are small, but powerful, so we do recommend using them at least a foot away from any medical implants. Got a pacemaker? Use it as an ankle bracelet.

Dynamic spin is dissimilar on each side of the device. The front says "Golden Vortex" and the back is smooth. The GV is designed to be worn with the smooth side touching your skin. This acts as a physical application, by contrast the lettered side seems to have a more mental or emotional antidote, so be alert to personal reactions and in the end choose the side that seems to work best.

The Golden Vortex has three basic functions:

One. Wear it as a pendant using a cord or chain. Some people report feelings of added energy, and tell of being more aware of their surroundings; like being able to react faster to driving emergencies.

Two. Using body tape from a pharmacy, put the GVIII directly on a pain spot. Masking tape sticks, but don't leave it on more than an hour as it can cause a skin rash. The GV can be slipped under a bandage, or the elastic top of a worn-out stocking.

Three. Drawing or pouring water through the GVIII center hole seems to cause water to reassign its molecules to six-sided clusters. This "Hexagonal Water" has been identified as the reason for the longevity of the Hunza people of northern Pakistan. It's said that the Hunza water is the result of being oxygenated and radiated by sunlight as it falls from heights, but we think that the Hunza people live a hundred years and more because of the electromagnetic properties of the Vortex area in which they live.

Run water into a glass through a funnel that fits the 3/8" center hole, then drink. You can also simply sip water through a straw inserted through the hole. Make sure the water emerges from the smooth side of the GVIII. Spray or splash treated water on your hair. We've had reports that wrinkles have become less prominent when the water is allowed to air dry on the skin.

Do not microwave the treated water, because it seems to break down the clusters. Slowly heating the water or pouring a prepared hot drink down the funnel is fine. Drinking the water before bed may cause frequent bathroom trips, but after a few days when the body becomes adjusted to the new water a clearing of the urine may be noticed. Testimony from users say that gastric distresses respond well, and others claim to have had relief from years of constipation. One user believes it kept the surgeon's scalpel away from a serious colitis problem. We pass on such comments without confirmation or knowledge to the contrary.

Using the lettered side of the GVIII appears to affect viruses and bacteria, shortening the symptoms of colds or flu. It should be located at the base of the neck between the clavicles as soon as one feels that familiar warning of a sore throat.

When left on the body in a prolonged exposure the GVIII has been noticed to cause a minor nerve ache. Should any application result in this kind of distress simply remove the device and wait a few hours before reapplying for any other condition. Sometimes the GVIII seems to absorb pain in a kind of empathic feed-back loop. So, the ache may actually be signaling an over-treatment, perhaps even the removal of a condition.

The GVIII seems to boost body energy in a way that most people can see as an aura around a hand. While wearing the GV hold a hand out so it is seen under a bright light and against a dark background. Slowly move your hand back and forth while looking between the fingers. Track the hand as it moves across the dark background, and soon a slight distortion in the air around the fingers and hand should become noticeable; like a filmy white mist or haze between and around the fingers. This deformation in the air is a part of the body's energy field; the aura, amplified and revealed to the gaze of even we mere mortals!

Some have said the device augments meditation. The GVIII's flat sides are for physical or mental welfare, but by holding the device upright between the middle and ring fingers something else seems to come into play. A sensation of what seems like cool water moving across the joints, yet others experience warmth, even a slight tingling. Is the spirit engaged? A few feel nothing.

These feelings are generally felt the first few times the GVIII is held, but as time goes on the sensations fade into the background. It may seem that the device is no longer working, but the observation is false; the user has literally gotten used to the device. It's working just fine!

The GV device intervenes between the body and the Earth's magnetic field. Therefore your body's spatial orientation to the Earth will dictate your use of the GVIII. When your body is horizontal to the Earth's surface, like in bed, normal reactions are altered, sometimes reversing itself from all that we have described up to here. So, when going to bed and wanting to treat a pain one should tape or otherwise hold the GVIII in the meditation position. This means if you want to work on pain in bed tape it between the fingers. Placing the GVIII flat under your pillow it may produce very interesting dreams, and, who knows, maybe even some morning wake-up eureka! moments.

Some people find that the GVIII magnet water removes rust and tooth plaque. Others have found that the GVIII makes wine taste more delicious. We make no determination about the things just read, but please report any of your own discoveries, and always remember:

The Golden Vortex can't do anything unless you use it!

Golden Vortex LLC does not claim that its products are intended to prevent, cure, mitigate, diagnose, or treat disease. Always consult health professionals if you feel you have a health problem.

More information at: GoldenVortex.com

